PATAGONIA...

Land of rivers, forests, glaciers and isolation

Adventurers will find some of the greatest trout fishing in the world in Patagonia. There are few unexplored places on earth where one can fish rivers, lakes and streams that have rarely, if ever, been fished before. A recent Triple Dare client described fishing conditions in this region as "beyond perfect" -- much as they would have been more than 100 years ago in Montana, Idaho or Wyoming.

Patagonia's beauty is breathtaking and the land is virtually uninhabited. Canoeing, horseback riding and hiking through areas of intense volcanic activity are but a few of the options available to Triple Dare adventurers. The kayaking and rafting expeditions in southern Chile are among the most scenic and, if desired, can be among the most challenging anywhere.

Triple Dare has discovered a lodge located on a beautiful and isolated lake at the outflow of a magnificent river. There are literally thousands of acres available to explore... all privately owned, protected and accessible via exclusive 'invitation-only' access. Our their unique customs and lifestyle with visitors. To share an experience with local Gauchos working cattle alongside their herding dogs is unforgettable. Not a tourist experience; this is the real thing.

Chileans take great pride in the care and presentation of their horses. Triple Dare invites you to ride these elegant animals through the countryside, past lakes and through streams. Coastal tours are also readily available.

The southern Chile experience is like none other on earth. The beauty, solitude and culture combine to make this a trip of a lifetime. Our Chilean partners (cooks, guides, drivers etc.) will make your experience unique and one to never forget. Their dedication to customer service and desire to show you true Chilean hospitality will have you making plans for your return trip long before your departure.

experienced guides lead expeditions through eight rivers and five lakes with rainbows, browns and an especially feisty native fish called perca trucha. Many fish in the region grow to more than two feet in length. Most of our fishing is done with dry flies, as well as nymphs and streamers.

Over the years we have developed and excellent non-fishing program at our lodge. Horseback riding, trekking, white water rafting, sightseeing and a host of other outdoor activities await those who don't want to fish or would like to do things other than fish while they are in southern Chile.

Although the population is sparse, Triple Dare has cultivated strong relationships with locals throughout the region. Native Chileans are proud of their land and heritage; they are always eager to share
